HARVARD'S BIG DAY

Over 200 Delegates, Representing Heads of World's Universities, at President Lowell's Installation.

(Special from United Press.)
Boston, Oct. 5.—Delegates from practically every university, college and learned society in the United States and many from the Universities of Great Britain and Europe, are arriving in Cambridge today to enroll at Harvard Union before the first ceremonies incident to the induction into office of President Lowell of Harvard takes place. There will be over 200 of these delegates and fully half of them will be the presidents of the institutions which they represent. The delegates who are already in Cambridge are mostly personal friends of members of the Harvard faculty. Among the early arrivals were Professor Aristides Mestres, representing the University of Havana and Professor Clerk, representing the University of Berlin. They are not officially guests of Harvard until today. After the registration there will be a formal reception by members of the governing board and faculties of Harvard. From then on the guests will have little time at their own disposal for the inaugural program covers almost every hour of the time of their visit. Work men are making rapid progress with the stage on which the ceremonies will take place to-morrow.

If the illness of those needed continues the committee can probably arrange to have the investigation go over until after election.

VOTING MACHINES ARE IN GOOD ORDER

The machinists who have charge of the voting machines state that the devices are in first class shape and that they were out of repair in without any warrant whatsoever in fact. Two of the castors by which they are moved from place to place were out of gear, but this affected in no wise the mechanism of the device.

The crop of buckram hat shapes would indicate that the covered hat has come once more.

RICE IS VICTOR OVER MARTIN BY 406 VOTES

Democratic Mayor's Plurality of Two Years Ago in New Haven Cut Severely in Heavy Poll of 20,000 Ballots—Hackett, Rowe and Fresenius Only Democrats to Win on City Ticket.

Overcoming a plurality of 1,567 secured by Mayor Martin against Milnor E. Chatfield just two years ago, Frank J. Rice led the Republican party back to city hall after a two-year exile yesterday, defeating Mayor Martin by 406 votes in what is the closest election New Haven has experienced in over a decade. The majority fight was a close one itself but it did not compare with some of the other contests in which victory and defeat were settled by less than 200 votes out of a total poll of nearly 20,000 ballots. Mayor Martin was defeated by the poor showing from a Democratic standpoint of the city and the fourth wards where his majorities of previous years were very seriously cut down and also by the big vote which the Republican party polled in their strong wards running up stupendous majorities in some of them. Every fight on the ticket except that for controller and that for town clerk was a spirited one. Controller Rowe, Democrat, being returned for still another term by about 1,500 votes despite the general discomfiture of his party while Town Clerk Whittier, Republican, was returned by 39 votes overtripped the Republican candidate for mayor by some 500 votes and had a plurality of nearly 1,600. Outside of Rowe there were but two successful Democratic candidates on the general city ticket, these being William H. Hackett, the popular high school instructor who defeated Attorney John R. Booth for tax collector by 633 votes, and Treasurer Fresenius who secured the closest victory of the day when he defeated Harry Whipple by 39 votes. City Clerk Devine fell by the wayside in his effort to secure a reelection by just 107 votes, and Robert E. Lee, Republican candidate for auditor of vital statistics, landed the position by 123 votes over Vincent Maher.

REPUBLICANS CONTROL ALDERMEN.
The Democratic domination of the board of aldermen is completely wiped away as the result of yesterday's voting, and Mayor-elect Rice will have an even greater majority in the new board than Mayor Martin has had in the present one. In the aldermen at large the dominant party will secure four members, all that it nominates while from the fifteen wards the party secured the First, Second, Fifth, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth, giving it ten out of fifteen so secured. This gives the Republicans fourteen members in the new board and the Democrats seven.

STODARD'S FINE RUN.
In the fight for alderman at large Louis E. Stoddard on the Democratic ticket made a brilliant run. In fact, although the candidate of the minority party he outstripped two of the Republicans landing third place among the entire eight candidates, and at that he was only 11 votes below the highest alderman at large. The entire contest for this position was a close and interesting one. Riley E. Phillips is the other successful minority alderman at large.

WHERE MARTIN FELL OFF.
Mayor Martin showed a falling off in the Democratic wards that caused his downfall. In the Second ward, usually Republican, but which he captured by ten votes two years ago, he was defeated yesterday by 39; in the Third, which gave him a plurality of 117 in 1907, he was down to 174; in the Fourth he fell from 295 to 172; in the Fifth he lost this year; the Sixth which gave him 309 before dropped to an even 100 the Seventh fell from 662 to 553; the Eleventh fell but ten votes, rolling up 163 as against 173, and the Twelfth dropped from 606 to 434.

SPLITTING NOT ELIMINATED.
To begin with there were 982 more votes cast for the office of mayor this year than last time, the total vote yesterday reaching 19,794. The use of the voting machines was unattended by any unpleasantness and little difficulty was experienced by the voters in using them. The heaviest vote in years was secured upon them and the claim that straight tickets would be the rule was utterly cast to the winds when the results were seen. The Democratic candidates varied for the controller at 10,146 to 9,301 or over 800 votes and the Republicans had differences from 9,707 for Rice, who was the leading man on his ticket, to 8,633 for controller, the lowest office.

The way in which the two parties are intertwined in the next administration also shows that splitting was not out, for there will be in the important offices a Republican mayor, a Republican city clerk, a Democratic tax collector, a Republican town clerk, a Democratic controller, a Republican auditor of vital statistics and a Democratic treasurer.

GARBAGE PLANT APPROVED.
The fight for the adoption of the authorization of a bond issue for the erection of a garbage plant was successful despite the many elements that entered against it. In the first place the majority of voters either approved or were indifferent to the proposition and in many cases in using the machines forgot all about the question so that the franchise was not exercised either strenuously on this matter. Of the 19,794 who did vote on the matter 1,907 approved it and 1,623 opposed it, so that it has been adopted, and the city can now go ahead and work out its plans for such a plant.

ELECTIONS IN CONNECTICUT

Waterbury—Republicans Elect Entire Ticket—Mahon Wins in New London.

According to belated returns to-day one of the most interesting points in the city and town elections held throughout this state yesterday was the enormous vote that was polled. In a number of the larger cities and in the towns where the license question was the main issue, the vote ran ahead of that cast in the Presidential election last year. The result of the sharp fight on the license question showed a slight gain for the "wet" in the large towns and cities that voted on the question decided in favor of license.

Waterbury, Oct. 5.—The Republicans elected the entire city ticket. W. B. Hotchkiss defeating F. T. Reeves for mayor by 492. Nine of the fifteen aldermen elected are Republicans. License won.

Meriden, Oct. 5.—The feature of the town election here was the defeat of ex-Senator Francis Atwater for tax collector. J. V. A. Dexter, the Republican nominee having a plurality of 750 votes. Mr. Atwater, who was dropped by the Democratic caucus because of his activity in collecting the commutation tax, was nominated on independent Republican and independent Democratic tickets but failed

ROOSEVELT'S PLAN IS PETERING OUT

(Special from United Press.)
Washington, Oct. 5.—Former President Roosevelt's scheme for raising his conservation policy to the dignity of a world movement is on the verge of dropping out of sight in the morass of state department archives. Out of the 49 countries with accredited representatives at Washington who were invited to participate in the proposed international congress only 19 have accepted, and there is grave doubt in official quarters whether the movement will extend beyond this first preliminary stage. The plan for the congress was launched during the closing days of the last administration. At President Roosevelt's direction Robert Bacon, then secretary of state, sent out invitations to the foreign countries and the advocates of the conservation of natural resources as an administrative policy hailed the announcement with marked enthusiasm. In the excitement attendant upon the change of administration, however, the plan was left suspended in midair. Replies came in slowly and in the few months that followed international conservation appears to have floated into the doldrums. Apparently it is still there with nobody to bring it out, now that the sponsor for the idea is in South Africa.

Just what is to become of it is a question. Some of the countries which have accepted the invitation to take part in the congress are Germany and Italy. Most of the other replies are from smaller countries. Inasmuch as the invitations have been accepted by some countries, it is probable that an effort will be made to carry the idea through in the near future. At least, whether the aim of the sponsor is realized or not.

FORCIBLY FED BY STOMACH PUMP

(Special from United Press.)
Birmingham, Eng., Oct. 5.—Miss Laura Ainsworth, one of the suffragettes who was forcibly fed by means of a stomach pump to prevent her starving herself to death in the Birmingham jail, is in a serious condition in a hospital as a result of the forcible feeding. Miss Ainsworth, although suffering terrible agony, gave out a statement in the presence of her lawyer and Miss Christabel Pankhurst, another suffragette, for the use of the prosecuting authorities in the event of her death. Miss Ainsworth was transferred from the jail to the hospital with the utmost secrecy. Her condition has alarmed the jail authorities and they wished to keep the case quiet. Six suffragettes are still confined in Birmingham jail and following the discovery of Miss Ainsworth's condition, lawyers visited them. All of the women had been subjected to the same stomach pump feeding process.

CAPT. BOYTON AN ENTHUSIAST

Some Practical Suggestions Aneut Proposed Celebration of Progress in 1910.

MAY THE MONTH HE SAYS

Captain Paul Boyton is heartily in sympathy with the proposed celebration of progress next year. He says that neither March nor April should be considered as the time for it as the weather would interfere with outdoor features. May, in his judgment is the month for the event, and he adds that he will be glad to render any aid in his power. Having had years of experience in the New Orleans and Coney Island Mardi Gras celebration, the Velled Prophet celebration in St. Louis and similar events in Europe, his knowledge would be valuable. Regarding the celebration he said to-day: "The newspapers have stated that the celebration could be held in March or April. I would advise against either of those months for the weather is an important factor. A Venetian fete effect could be easily worked up for the harbor. Every boat in the city should decorate and illuminate, and if all boatmen co-operated, which could be brought about without any difficulty, an attractive sight would be the result. "In a large manufacturing city like Bridgeport, a true parade could be made attractive. Floats representative of the history of Bridgeport could be obtained, and when you consider floats, the committee in charge of the celebration can hire them for the occasion at a reasonable cost. There are floats used in the Coney Island celebration that can be rented and made over for the occasion, thus saving the expense of building new ones, which are useless after the celebration is over. I have had a float had for the occasion and I have no doubt that these could be obtained from the charge of the Velled Prophet celebration held annually in St. Louis.

"Bridgeport has much interesting Indian history and in that direction I would suggest that the committee in charge of the celebration should have a float representing the capture of a pirate ship and its destruction. It would not be necessary to go outside of Bridgeport. I have stored here a fleet of 26 miniature warships, 12 to 29 feet long, made of steel, and each a perfect reproduction of modern ships of war. Each is operated by a man on board and a naval show which has never been presented outside of the St. Louis World's fair, can be presented. I also had a naval show in Earl's Court London, some of the paraphernalia of which I think could be had. "I have been in this city for the past three years and it's progress is wonderful, and in my time I have lived in many places. The advantages to Bridgeport in such a celebration are manifold and worth the time and expense to work up on a elaborate scale. I will be glad to help in any way."
